What's worse on a car,
When taking a nap,
Than to have a fat woman
Fall into your lap?

Much worse, O my friend,
Is the man full of chat,
Who, when he converses,
Spills dew on your hat.

Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Noyes have moved from their delightful home in East Fourth street and taken up their residence in the Hill Home.

Oklahoma Blaze

The alarm of fire this morning shortly after 5 o'clock was caused by the roof catching fire at the home of John Dryden in Oklahoma near the schoolhouse. The Fire Department responded to the call but the blaze was extinguished by the prompt action of neighbors. The damage was very slight.

City Mission Notes

The Board of City Missions met Tuesday, March 5th, at the Mission Rooms. After the reading of the minutes of the last meeting and the report of the Treasurer, Mrs. Brock announced her report as follows:

Family expenses.....$41.97
Cash given out.....$6.85
Cattle made.....93
Garments given out.....105

There has been quite a good deal of sickness and destitution during the past month, and assistance has been rendered families, not only in East and West Maysville, but also on the Lexington pike.

The ladies of the Board of City Mission wish through this medium to extend thanks to the Doctors who so kindly gave their services free of charge in the case of George Cooper at the Wilson Hospital.

BURLEY MEN PLEASED

Success of Pool Puts New Blood Into Tobacco Industry

Lexington Herald.

The success of the ten-year pool brought joy to the members of the Executive Committee of the Burley Society yesterday and they, who had worked so hard to give it the start it has gotten, were the center of congratulation in their respective counties. Members of the District Board were proud also of the success of the pool and went home from Lexington to spread the good news to those who had helped make it a "go" by joining in the movement.

The Burley Tobacco Society has announced that it will establish loose leaf markets in Flemingsburg, Brooksville, Carlisle and Nicholasville, in addition to those already in operation in nine other towns in Central Kentucky, and one may be located in Maysville, Augusta and Falmouth. Other central points will be looked after if deemed necessary.

Under the new Burley Society system of handling the tobacco will be handled at the least expense to the grower, the buyer and the ten year pooling organization.

Since the opening of a loose leaf warehouse in Maysville by members of the old pool the feeling toward continuance of the Burley Tobacco Society ten-year movement has been but lukewarm and while no outward opposition has been manifested a good many of the most influential growers have not seen fit to go into the new movement.

Owing to the success of the markets of the Society in Mt. Sterling, Frankfort and Cynthiana the loose leaf warehouses at these points may be considerably enlarged.

WEATHER REPORT

THURSDAY UNSETTLED; FRIDAY SNOW OR RAIN.

Twenty-four missionaries to China landed safely at San Francisco on last Friday and reported that eight missionaries connected with Christian Missions were massacred last October. The massacre took place about the time Rev. Gordon and party began their flight.

Mr. and Mrs. James Woods, who spent the winter in Covington, moved back Monday and are again domiciled in their pretty home, corner of Commerce and Forest avenue.

The B. O. Club held their weekly "frat sorority" meeting at the home of Mr. Joseph Calvert, their President, last Saturday. A delightful evening was spent with music, dancing and other amusements.

Deafness Cannot be Cured
by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a running sound in perfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; no case out of ten is cured by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars free.

THE SILK APEX

Our present exhibit of silk marks the point at which our stock is the largest of the whole year. It is a splendidly complete showing of every fashion favored silk fabric of the season within the price limits of 25c to $2.

Not a popular shade is missing. You can't fail to be satisfied in this widely varied stock. Come in, it takes light and touch to determine the real value of our silks. You must feel the spring and life that mark their quality, in the weaves that prove their stylishness, the colors that show their newness.

THE PRICES—Moderate beyond belief until you see the qualities they represent.

At 25c—Striped marquisette.
At 39c—Dotted poplin and marquisette.
At 49c—Foulard, chiffon, satin, marquisette, messaline.

At 69c—Satin meteor, and pongee.
At 85c—A special yard wide black messaline and spot-proof foulard.

At 98c—Yard wide tub silk.
At $1—Striped and plain light and dark messaline. Changeable taffeta and charmeuse. Pongee, serge, foulard.

WHAT FASHION SAYS

The set-in sleeve must replace the kimono. Skirts remain narrow, short and scant. Tau takes precedence of other colors. Blue follows a close second. The one-sided effect in coats and dresses is a pronounced note. Corage bouquets of satin flowers, singly or in clusters, continue in great vogue. The Dutch neck and short sleeves prevail. Trimmed suits largely replace the severely tailored.

FOR PRESIDENT,

It is said that all of the protected trusts laughed when they saw the hat that T. R. threw in the ring. They recognized it as the same old hat that was passed around in 1904. —St. Louis Republic.

The first thought about the Roosevelt letter is that it causes him the loss of many friendships that most men would prize above rubies or any political honors. The sentimental side is apparent in all the dispatches dealing with the statement.

The serious illness of Hon. Harry Schabenth will likely prevent him from becoming an active candidate against Campbell Cantrill. It may also give him time to think over the matter and realize what a big mistake he made in getting into the political mess to please a lot of disgruntled politicians, thereby placing a damper on seemingly a bright political future. —Winchester Democrat.

Frankfort Correspondence Louisville Herald:

GOVERNOR McCREARY gave reasons last Wednesday why he proposed, to approve the Partisan Prison Bill. In effect he said the Legislature was a co-ordinate department of the State government, a power unto itself, that courted no dictation from any other department, although such dictation might emanate from the executive department.

Caustic comment relative to this attitude of the Governor is being freely uttered. It is not confined to the membership of the Republican minority. The Democratic Progressives in the House are united in the declaration that in view of the Governor's position on a former occasion, his statement, to say the least, is inconsistent.

It will be remembered that when the House speakership fight was on, Governor McCREARY openly declared his preference for CLAUDE B. TERRELL the victor of that struggle. According to reports of that contest the Governor even went so far as to declare that any representative in doubt as to what his wishes were in the matter might readily find out by dropping into the Governor's office.

Republicans as a unit, and many of the Democrats now would like to know why the Governor dictated to the House on that occasion and refused to so recently when a question far more vital to the people of Kentucky—that of prison reform—was allowed to be crushed beneath the "steam roller" operated by "hungry pie-partisans."

Further evidence of the Governor's inconsistency, if it be such, developed last night when the chief executive consulted with members of the Rules Committees of both branches and gave them orders, it is said, as to what legislation should be given right of way when the Rules Committees took charge.

Apparently not satisfied with the "speed" being made by the solons, the Governor haled President McDERMOTT from the Senate and Speaker TERRELL from the House shortly before noon and a hurried conference was held in his office. For less than half an hour Senator LAWRENCE held the gavel in the upper house. Representative HAMILTON presided in the lower branch.

THERE doesn't seem to be so much in the present race for the lion tamer; fact is, it is doubtful if he ever even gets that hat back. —Lexington Herald.

At Grand Rapids National Committeeman JOHN W. BLODGETT, replying to a request from the New York Roosevelt committee for an opinion on the colonel, wired:

"ROOSEVELT is the Bryan of the Republican party." BLODGETT is uncompromisingly for TAFT.

THE Rooseveltians had little showing here Saturday with Hon. GREEN GARRETT and his TAFT followers lined up good and thick. Mr. GARRETT telegraphed Senator BRADLEY and Congressman LANGLEY that their presence was not needed as he would handle the situation. —Winchester Democrat.

DURING the past six years the Erie has carried a total of 180,000,000 passengers, with just one death of a woman who died in her berth of heart failure. Very rigid rules are enforced on this road in the matter of passenger train speed, no chances being taken on broken rails and such contingencies.

THE American people may be trusted to protect themselves from the menace of Roosevelt's sordid lust for power. But if the Republican party falls a prey to this man's selfish ambition, the party of LINCOLN and GRANT, the party of GARFIELD and HARRISON and McKINLEY will surrender its birthright of independence and become the helpless tool of one of the most unscrupulous political tricksters of the age. —Binghamton (N. Y.) Press.

ALTHOUGH United States Senator HOKER SMITH, of Georgia, is a self educated as well as a self-made man, his favorite diversion is reading the great classics written in Latin. Mentally, as well as physically, he is one of the big men of the Senate and because of his previous experience as governor and member of the cabinet he has plunged right into active service with his party, avoiding the usual period of obscurity experience by new members of the Upper House.

ELSEWHERE on this page there appears a long article from the New York World, describing the attitude of the American press toward the Roosevelt boom. It is well worth reading. In an effort to be fair, the World, little as it loves the ex-President, has leaned toward rather than away from him in its interpretation of the facts.

Roosevelt and The Newspapers.

Mr. ROOSEVELT built up his popularity as a figure in national politics largely through the judicious use of newspaper publicity. At the time of his greatest popularity he was singularly free from newspaper criticism.

But nobody can say that Mr. ROOSEVELT is free from such criticism to-day. As a matter of fact, it is rather under-stating than over-stating the case to say that for every important paper supporting him at the present time, there are from ten to fifteen equally important papers bitterly opposing his candidacy.

No man can stand the criticism, the charges of trickery, egotism, unbridled ambition and bad faith that have been brought against Mr. ROOSEVELT in the newspapers within the past few weeks without having his position before the people somewhat affected thereby. —Times Star.

IT WAS NONE OF HIS BUSINESS.

I went into a drygoods store to get some stockings for my wife and said to the young woman at the counter: "How high do your stockings come?" "None of your business," she replied.

RETIRE OLD INDIAN FIGHTER

Brigadier General Howe, One of Few Survivors of Modoc Campaign, Soon to End Service.

Brig. Gen. Walter Howe, United States army, who recently was in command of the department of the east in the temporary absence of Maj. Gen. Leonard Wood, has served in the artillery forces for 46 years.

General Howe is soon to retire from the service under the age limit law. He is one of the few survivors of the officers of the United States army who took part in the campaign years ago against Captain Jack and his fellow braves of the Modoc tribe in the far northwest.

It was during the campaign against the Modocs that artillery was used by the white soldiers as a weapon of offense.

A Battery Was Sent to the Front.

Defense against Indians who had taken the warpath. At that time General Howe was a second lieutenant serving with a light battery of the Fourth artillery.

Captain Jack and Scar-Faced Charlie, Modoc chiefs, and their following resented the attempt which was made to get them to leave land on which their tribe had dwelt for years.

Peace commissioners were sent to treat with the Indians. One of the members of the commission being General Canby. Captain Jack asked for a parley with the commission and the request was granted. As soon as General Canby and his fellow commission members met the Indians Jack and his followers opened fire and killed every member of the peace party.

The Modocs then took to the lava beds of the northwest and it was found to be impossible to dislodge them by means of direct assault. The troops engaged against the Indians at the first were cavalrymen, and all their operations had to be conducted dismount.

A battery of the Fourth artillery, to which Lieutenant Howe was attached, was sent to the front and the shelling of the Indians' position was begun. It took a long time to dislodge them, for the lava beds were full of caves which made excellent bomb-proofs.

Finally, however, starvation did what shells could not do, and the Modocs surrendered. Captain Jack, Scar-Faced Charlie, Jim, and one or two other Modocs were hanged for the murder of the peace commissioners.

Brigadier General Howe entered the United States Military academy as a cadet during the civil war. It was only a few years after he was graduated that the light battery to which he was attached was sent to the plains country and thence to Oregon.

After the Modoc war was over it became the practice to attach light batteries to expeditionary forces in the field against the Indians, and Lieutenant Howe served in the Sioux campaign in 1876, a campaign which saw the wiping out of General Custer and three squadrons of the Seventh cavalry, the temporary triumph of Sitting Bull and then the final rounding up of several thousand Sioux warriors who had taken to the warpath because of the invasion of their country by the whites.

In the army General Howe is known as one of the most proficient students in the artillery branch of the service. He was graduated from the artillery school in 1873 and has served with both the field and the sea coast branches of the service.

The whole artillery system has undergone radical transformation and with the introduction of modern rapid-fire guns for field service and the heavy rifled breech-loading disappearing-carriage guns of the coast service the artillery officers have been compelled to adapt themselves to a constant succession of changes. As an instructor and as a commanding officer General Howe has won great prominence. His active service with the army will end in December next.

DECIDE YOURSELF

THE OPPORTUNITY IS HERE BACKED BY MARYSVILLE TESTIMONY.

Don't take our word for it. Don't depend on a stranger's statement. Read the statements of Marysville citizens. And decide for yourself. Here is one case of it: M. C. Chisholm, 317 East Second street Marysville, Ky., says:

"The cure Doan's Kidney Pills effected in my case some years ago has been permanent, and the public testimonial I gave in their praise still holds good. I was bothered a great deal by too frequent passages of the kidney secretions, this being especially annoying at night, when I was obliged to arise several times. Having my attention called to Doan's Kidney Pills, I procured a box at J. J. Wood & Son's Drugstore, and had only taken them a short time before I noticed a marked improvement. They soon cured me, and I have since learned of several other cases where Doan's Kidney Pills have been used with good results."

NOTES WITH "REGRET" TEDDY IS RUNNING

Wilson Would Rather See Him in Mad House Than White House

In a letter to a friend in Lexington, from General James H. Wilson of Wilmington, Del., who formerly commanded the United States Cavalry corps under General Sherman, in the capture of Atlanta, General Wilson said:

"I note with regret that you are thinking of Theodore Roosevelt for President of the United States. I say 'regret,' for he has not only had his two terms, and nobody should have more, but he is a very dangerous, emotional, vacillating and unsafe man, entirely unfitted for further responsibility as President of the United States. It is one of the anomalies and absurdities of American life that he who was not in the fight of San Juan Hill, should have received the principal reward of the Spanish War in his election to the Presidency.

"Since his repudiation of his solemn pledge of November 8th, 1904, that: 'Under no circumstances will I be a candidate for, or accept another nomination,' in view of his many and flagrant violations of sound statesmanship, and since his Columbus speech, I regard him as a far fitter candidate for a mad house than for the White House. I have always wanted to see Kentucky Republican, but I shall be perfectly content to see it go Democratic, if it stands for Roosevelt as the next candidate for the Republican party."

What Came Between Taft and Roosevelt

They Parted Affectionately on March 4th, 1909, and Have Met But Three Times Since, But Many Letters Have Been Exchanged---Irritation Dating From Pre-Inauguration Days Has Been Aggravated By Tale-Bearing Friends---Breach Was Widened at Last Two Meetings.

Washington Special to St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

The newspapers of March 6th, 1909, recorded an impressive scene that had taken place in the Senate Chamber just after William H. Taft had been sworn in as President of the United States.

"Then the ex-President," says one account of the inauguration, "started to leave the chamber with Senator Knox as an escort. As he passed around the rostrum Mr. Taft was coming down. Mr. Roosevelt ran up the steps and grasped President Taft by the shoulders. The President grasped his predecessor in the same way. For a second they hugged each other and then shook hands vigorously."

This occurrence, testifying more dramatically than any other to the warm friendship that existed between William H. Taft and Theodore Roosevelt three brief years ago, was recalled by hundreds in Washington to night when it became known that Roosevelt had entered the race for the 1912 nomination, and the questions were asked: "What is the explanation? What has brought about the change in the relations between these two men?"

ROOSEVELT'S LOVE OF POWER.

Republicans who know both Roosevelt and Taft intimately will tell you now that they realized from the time Taft was elected that a break was bound to come between Taft and his predecessor. They credit Roosevelt with having been absolutely sincere in his early manifestations of regard and affection for Taft, but they declare they were certain in the end that Roosevelt's ambition, his love of power, his desire to dominate the Taft administration, his habit of magnifying innocent acts into intended slights and his disposition to listen to the tales of trouble makers would lead to an estrangement.

The irritation on the Colonel's part, so his friends say, began even before Mr. Taft had been installed at the White House. When Mr. Taft was making up his cabinet Roosevelt understood to have made only one request, and that was that William Loeb, Jr., who had served for years as Roosevelt's Secretary, should have a place in the Taft Cabinet. At that time the country was speculating on whether Roosevelt was to dominate the Taft administration. The assertion was being made that Roosevelt having dominated Taft and contributed largely to his election, would in considerable measure dictate the affairs of the administration. It was chiefly to put an end to these rumors and establish the Taft administration on its own basis that the President turned Loeb down as a cabinet possibility. He offered Mr. Roosevelt's Secretary instead any other executive office within his gift. The President eventually took only one man from the Roosevelt administration, George Von L. Meyer, now Secretary of the Navy.

MIFFED BEFORE INAUGURATION.

Another occurrence before Mr. Taft was installed in the White House irritated President Roosevelt. Mr. Roosevelt, it was said, resented the appearance of Mr. Taft in Washington in the closing days of his administration. Mr. Taft came to the National Capital five or six days before the date of the inauguration as a guest of W. J. Boardman. With the appearance of the incoming President the time light immediately shifted from the White House to the Boardman residence. A long string of prominent callers trooped to the Boardman home day after day, and newspapers reported fully the doings of the President elect. President Roosevelt is said to have commented disparagingly to members of Congress on the action of Mr. Taft in having come to Washington and undertaken conferences with statesmen before the Roosevelt administration had breathed its last.

But Mr. Roosevelt, after his departure from Washington in a blinding blizzard, gave evidence of what many R-publicans regard as a sincere desire to let President Taft establish his administration free from the Roosevelt domination. These Republicans add, however, that Colonel Roosevelt, while maintaining an attitude of insolation, always hoped and expected to be consulted in regard to the policies that President Taft should inaugurate and carry out. It was in this manner that he expected to exercise his influence, but Mr. Taft, while endeavoring to adhere to so-called Roosevelt policies as he interpreted them, early gave evidence of an intention to think and act for himself.

LETTERS PASSED BETWEEN THEM.

In the few weeks following the inauguration, before Mr. Roosevelt sailed for Africa, frequent letters passed between the two men, and while the Colonel was on his big hunt Mr. Taft received several communications from him describing his experiences. From the first, however, there was an apparent restraint between the two in regard to the discussion of legislation and other affairs of the administration. Republicans in Washington have been inclined to the opinion that the President himself has rather resented the popular impression that Roosevelt nominated and elected him, and this feeling has undoubtedly operated as a bar to the continuance of close relations.

Roosevelt's friends themselves acknowledge, however, that one of the "offenses" which the Colonel harbors against Taft was the character of a letter which President Taft wrote to Colonel Roosevelt just before he sailed for Africa. The President sent Major Archibald W. Butt, his military aid, to New York to deliver this letter to the Colonel as he was embarking. In this letter President Taft wished the Colonel a pleasant journey and thanked him again for what he had done for him. The President's letter is said to have closed with the expression: "I owe more to Charles P. Taft and you than any other two men on earth," or substantially those words. Roosevelt's friends have made no secret of his anger over that letter. They say he banished it and cried:

"Good Lord! So he puts money above brains, does he?"

Whether this was a tactful letter for the President to write Roosevelt is a question for political philosophers to solve, but the President

Mr. C. W. FAWCETT, of Millville, Calif., writes: "I wish to tell you that I have used your 'Golden Medical Discovery' in my family for twenty years. We have had a doctor called in but once during that time. I have a family of ten children, all well and hearty, for which, to a great extent, we owe thanks to you and your 'Golden Medical Discovery' and 'Pelllets,' which we use when sick."

BRUCE APPOINTED

Houston Man is Traveling Immigration Agent

Houston Post.

George S. Bruce of this city yesterday was appointed to the position of traveling immigration agent of the International and Great Northern, with headquarters in Houston. The appointment was announced yesterday by T. C. Kimber, general immigrant agent of the joint immigration bureau of St. Louis. This bureau has charge of the land and immigration business of the International and Great Northern, the Texas and Pacific, the Iron Mountain and the Southern Railway.

Both railroad and land men declare that a better selection would have been hard to make. For years Mr. Bruce has made a study of the agricultural and industrial needs and conditions of the territory traversed by the Gould lines and is well equipped to discuss and demonstrate the many advantages that territory has to offer to the homeseeker, investor and manufacturer. He has held the responsible position of general land and immigration agent of the Sunset Lines of Texas for a number of years, and is not only well and favorably known by land men all over Texas, but by a large number from all other States.

Mr. Bruce is a son-in-law of Rev. and Mrs. J. M. Evans of Limestone street, this city.
